

BF&A - 02 - From Alicante to Fussen (Part 2)

August 23, 2013 | Author: Albert

Selva Negra / Black Forest / Schwarzwald - Alemania / Germany

(Click on the images to see a larger version)

Day 1 (Part 2)

We continue our walk through the city. This time it's Lola who takes the pictures: a very curious fountain and decorated façades with paintings looking for a three dimensional effect. It will not be the last time contemplating this style of decoration but not always with the same result, sometimes well done and other times shrill and 'unreal'.

[Photo]

The Lech River crosses the town and divides it into two areas before draining into the swamp of Forggensee.

[Photo]

We went to the boarding house, the Landhaus Seehof, located on the outskirts of the city, but before we make a visit to the lake, the Weißensee. It is a pleasure to do a walk, I remember my childhood in Holland where we spent our summers at my grandmother's home, my Oma. The parks are really well designed for children. We can see full of families enjoying the good weather.

[Photo]

Dinner. Homemade dishes that we found exquisite. Despite the linguistic deficit we have in this country, communication and people's attention is unbeatable.

Photos taken with mobile phone

We ended the day walking around the lake and admiring a magnificent moonrise.

[Photo]

To be continued ...