

When you go out of Valencia you find mountains and beautiful landscapes.
Today I'll visit Alcublas.

After visiting the village, I climbed to the mills
to admire the view of the landscape. Storm threatened.

Image

It's a shame because some of the landscape was burned
by such serious fires last summer.
Still it is wonderful looking and staring into miles of fields, forests and towns.

The wind up there was very strong. It was very humid.
I stake the tripod at various points of the peak and made a few pictures.
Windmills are used from seventeenth century to the twentieth.
They have been rebuilt.
The blades have been temporarily removed.

Finally, a view of Alcublas down there.
A well-marked path to get there.
Eventually we made it without soaking.

Until next time ...
